Class Will

We, the class of 1951, in the town of Cache, the county of Comanche, and the state of Oklahoma, being of sound mind and memory, do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament, hereby revoking any will or wills heretofore made by us.

We hereby, separately, dispose of the following possessions:

I, Thurman Bishop, do hereby will my ability to make Mr. Smart laugh to anyone when in trouble.

I, Charlene Bennett, to Helen June Bennett, do hereby will my job as Editor of the Challenger.

I, Harvey Byrd, do hereby will my ability to attract all the women at the fairs to Bill Mahaffey.

I, Wanda Daubenspeck, do hereby bequeath my girlish figure to Darla Wilks.

I, LeRoy Byrd, do hereby will my ability to tell a bad joke and get a good laugh to James Green.

I, Marian Good, do hereby will my ability to guard to Juanita Miller.

I, Anita Jones, do hereby will my ability to play basketball to Helen Wimple.

I, Dale Bowman, do hereby will the fascination I see out the window to Vern Ford.

I, J. Mack Cox, do hereby will my ability to get to bed at least one night out of the week to Bill Mahaffey.

I, Ladine Stewart, do hereby will my refined and quiet ways to Joy Walker.

I, Charles Hutson, do hereby will my ability to express myself at anytime to Danny Harmon.

I, Marian Miller, do hereby bequeath my extraordinary height to Mary Lou Zumwalt.

I, Billy Frank Runnels, do hereby bequeath my ability to get around and do more than anyone else to William Pekah.

I, Earl Yeahquo, do hereby will my dimples to Edgar Gildon who needs to do more smiling.

I, Johnnie Bob Runnels, do hereby will my ability to sing when in a crowd to Bobby Gene Lee.

I, Katherine Smith, do hereby regretfully will my few freckles to Geraldine Goodman who needs them if anyone does.

I, Libby Ann Hines, do hereby will my dark and roving eyes to Roberta Jones.

I, Troy Smart, do hereby will my ability to drive a hot rod and not get hurt to Arlis Newhouse.

I, Dellia Simms, do hereby bequeath my locker complete with books, trash, etc. to Evie Ritter.

I, Eugene Trest, do hereby will my broken glasses to Stonewall Huddleston.

I, Loretta Slatten, do hereby will my perfume bottle to Mary K. Cook so she can continue that wonderful aroma.

I, Reford Ulrich, do hereby bequeath my red hair to Strawberry Harmon.

I, Susan Gilbert, do hereby bequeath my ability to catch a man and keep him to Edna Belle Woodard.

I, Louis Wayne Caha, do hereby bequeath my ability to bust Geography class and still get good grades to Doyne Snider.

I, Dorothy Lynch, do hereby gladly will my calm and collected nerves to Shirley Rogers for special use in Speech Class.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we, the Class of 1951, have set our hands and seal hereto this seventeenth day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifty-one (1951).

Class Prophecy

Looking into my crystal ball I see another senior class as they are starting through life with vigor and vitality and as the forms of people come to shape I recognize:

First of all as I look into the crystal ball I see a pretty nurse in a hospital, and as she faces this way I recognize her. She is Katherine Smith just completing her last year of training, and I predict she will be as successful as she is pretty.

Then the scene shifts to a large garage and I see a man just cleaning up after a day's work. Through the grease and smudges on his face I can still make out the countenance of Charles Hutson, a very successful mechanic and garage owner.

As I now move my hand over the crystal a race track at Indianapolis appears, and the announcer is calling the winers of the car races. "The Winner, driving Car No. 17, is Troy Smart, greatest daredevil driver of all times."

Then, like a flash, I see Marian Good through the crystal. She is married and settled down on a ranch, where she and her husband are raising quarter horses and cattle, and do they look happy!

Now I seem to be out on a baseball field. Playing second base, I see Johnnie Bob Runnels, who is doing mighty well, now playing for the Cardinals. He always was quite a baseball player.

A sudden change occurs in the crystal ball and I see Dellia Simms. She is just going into the house, after coming out of the flower garden where she and her husband have been working. They have a nice, beautiful home in Lawton and are doing very well from the looks of things.

Now I see Anita Jones. She is married to a very handsome young man. They have two children, a boy who is two years old and a girl who is seven months old. The children are very cute and Anita is quite proud of them.

The scene turns now to a large office and taking dictation is Libby Ann Hines, the boss's private secretary. She's making lots of money and enjoying her job, from the looks of the smiles the boss just gave her. There could be more to this, but I must not tarry here.

A quiet peaceful scene has just come into view. On a farm at the close of the day, sitting on the porch content with his day's work is LeRoy Byrd, a very prosperous farmer.

And, as I look across the road I see another man. He is tall and blond. He seems to be raising more cattle than he is farming. He, too, is doing very well. This is Harvey Byrd.

Then away across the sky I see a plane. And through my crystal ball I recognize the flyer as Dale Bowman, now flying for the U.S. Air Force. He always did want to fly.

Now, as I again look into the future I see a class room. At the front of the room I see a very stately looking teacher. She is tall and very easy to look at. Marian Miller is just starting her first year of teaching after completing college.

A newspaper office! Owned and partly operated by Charlene Bennett, Editor! This is the present scene I now have in the crystal. Charlene is doing pretty good, along with the help of her husband. She had plenty of practice while editing the school paper, I remember.

Now comes the ice, and I see Reford Ulrich, as owner and operator of the largest ice plant in Oklahoma City. He's a very successful man now and smokes 12-cent cigars. He has a large office and is just pretty well to do financially. He got his start by being the Cache City iceman.

Again the scene shifts to a family at home. It is Susan Gilbert this time. She and Ollie Price were married when school was first out after graduation. They're both happy. It must have been love.

Now on the other side of this crystal ball, I see another farmer feeding his cows. He has just returned from the army and is now raising hogs and cattle along with his farming. He always did raise good stock. That's Louis Wayne Caha I'm talking about.

Now my eyes look out on a shiny basketball court, and playing center is a tall dark man, No. 26. He has just sacked up two points, and as he trots down the court I see that it is Earl Yeahquo. He is now teaching school and playing ball.

Way out on the desert I see J. Mack Cox. He is carrying pencils, paints and such and is fixing to draw a picture of some cacti, for that's his job. He is now known as Big Mack, the famous picture post card artist of the west.

Into a drug store I now seem to be moving. Behind the counter is a lady pharmacist, Ladine Stewart, the only lady pharmacist in Lawton. She is also a registered nurse, but is just working a little now for a change.

A new scene has interrupted my view. A great basketball team has just won the regionals at Altus and I see the coach jumping up and down with joy. She is a small woman, vaguely familiar. Oh! yes, I recognize her. It is Wanda Daubenspeck, famed woman basketball coach of the Southwest.

The general turmoil at a radio show greets my vision now. It is "My Friend Irma," and playing Irma is Dorothy Lynch. But you would hardly recognize her now; she has changed so. I believe she's better than the real one. She got her start by being the ticket puncher at the school cafeteria where she had to deal with so many wacky characters waiting in line to be served.

Now I see a freshly graded street with forms around it. There is a man who is tall and large directing the work. He seems to be the boss, from the orders he gives, and as he comes this way I recognize him as Thurman Bishop.

The switch now is to a switchboard of a large telephone office, Operating Board No. 9 is a pretty girl putting through a long distance call. As she turns this way I can see the familiar face of Loretta Slatten.

The light is fading now from the ball, but I can still see, last but not least, a man wearing two guns swung low and dressed to kill for a moving picture. Playing the role of the two-gun outlaw hero is Billy Frank Runnels. He was always reading western books, so I guess he is living the life. He was always happy and showed it with a smile to everyone. He always drank his Hadacol to keep young.

The light is out. Only darkness is left as this Senior Class of '51 goes on its way.
